

Hypancistrus zebra
(Zebra pleco)

Potential outcomes if Hypancistrus zebra (Zebra pleco), which has been banned for export in Brazil since 2004, is listed by CITES

App III

Conservation efforts
Captive-bred trade continues to fund conservation through Ictu Xingu charity.

Livelihood effects
Trade in captive-bred continues to provide livelihoods for people.

App II
(0 wild quota)

Conservation efforts
Captive-bred trade has increased administrative burdens which leads to a potential reduction in conservation funding.

Livelihood effects
Captive-bred trade has increased admin burdens—and costs rise on individuals and businesses.

App I

Conservation efforts
Captive-breeding stops due to CITES regulation. No funding for conservation and potential increased demand for illegal wild specimens.

Livelihood effects
Captive-breeding stops due to CITES regulations and people lose their livelihoods.